Alternatively, FRI shall also be entitled to withdraw from all contracts not yet completely fulfilled and to claim compensation for the damage resulting from the default of the contract (positive or negative contractual interest).
5. In the event of default, the customer agrees to reimburse us for any reminder and collection expenses incurred, including lawyers' and court costs. In addition, any further damage, in further damage resulting from the fact that correspondingly higher interest accrues on any credit accounts on our part as a result of non-payment, shall be compensated irrespective of fault.

7. Regarding Concealed Damage: Concealed damage claims are made when damage to the item isn't immediately noticeable until after the delivery to final destination has been made. In standard shipping / receiving terms, these damages are difficult to prove, and there is only a five-day window to make these freight claims due to the standardized concealed damage clause in shipping contracts. FRI provides a cursory visual inspection of received goods. FRI has established parameters with our vendor partners that extend these time frames for replacement of concealed damages. Goods are intended to be delivered to customer sites within two weeks of receipt to our receiving facility. Goods that have delayed deliveries or extended storage periods beyond the two-week period may be subject to costs for replacement to the buyer. Each circumstance of concealed damages will be evaluated on a case-by-case basis and disclosed as such.

13. If the site is an active construction project not in post-completion status, Buyer assumes all responsibility for goods and any circumstance that could affect the condition of goods and services as they may be applied to correct any issues.
14. In the event that supervisors, management, operators and/or security personnel services costs are to be incurred by the delivery vendor to provide staffing services of any type, additional fees to cover those services will be incurred and charged to the client.
